The Trombone Choir

Every Easter morning the strains of the Moravian Trombone Choir echo through the quaint community of Nazareth. Rising at two in the morning, the members march through the town, stopping to play at numerous street corners. As the sun begins to come up, they continue to the cemetery and play for the sunrise service held there. This solemn service commemorates the resurrection of Christ on Easter morning.

The Trombone Choir is one of the town's many customs which has survived through the years. Since the founding of Nazareth in 1740, colorful backyard flower gardens, sauerkraut making, auctions, holiday cookie making, and many other activities have become traditional.

Against this Pennsylvania Dutch background, we, the class of 1950, have pictured our school life. Besides the regular school curriculum and sports, our school and activity periods not only develop new interests and reveal abilities, but also reflect our rich community heritage and interest in art and music.

Sauerkraut Making

As surely as autumn comes to a Pennsylvania Dutch community, so does the time for making sauerkraut. For don't all good Pennsylvania Dutchmen still enjoy sauerkraut and pork?

After the cabbage has been grated and salt added, the mixture is stamped in an old-fashioned crock. The ripening process then begins.

Just as these eager Pennsylvania Dutch workers were kept busy doing home-like tasks, so are the students busy with their school tasks of preparing assignments and attending classes. The industrious students work toward a good finished product just as did our Pennsylvania Dutch sauerkraut makers.

Returning to School

Students chat on the way to the next class.

With the coming of September, the familiar back-to-school call is again heard. Approximately 500 students flock to the open door of Nazareth High School eager to begin another year. The buzz of chatter fills the air as boys and girls unite and meet new acquaintances after the long summer vacation.

The first day found students busily filling out program cards and getting schedules arranged.

Pupils stop for a refreshing drink.

Students fill out program cards.

Planning Our Future Vocations

To all students seeking help in vocational fields, the Kuder Preference Record is available. This is a device used in the guidance program to discover broad student interests.

Mr. Goulding and a group of students study Kuder Tests.

In our homeroom periods students discuss many topics of interest. Some of these include the qualifications of a good citizen and Student Council activities.

Students have a homeroom discussion.

Mrs. Zell gives suggestions about choosing a college.

The College Advisory Service is designed for those needing aid in choosing a college. At individual conferences, qualifications and entrance examinations are discussed.

Exploring in Science

Biology students gain practical knowledge by making microscopic observations of plants and animals and by dissecting frogs and earthworms. They also gain a knowledge of the utilization of biology in milk pasteurization and cheese and butter making.

Developing an understanding of science and an appreciation of the part that chemistry plays in our daily lives is the chief objective of chemistry students. A scientific attitude is developed through study and laboratory experiments.

Through laboratory experiments the physics student learns to think as well as work with his hands. The laboratory course is an experimental supplement to the regular class work. Part of this knowledge is used as chemistry preparatory work.

Mr. Roth explains the anatomy of a fish. Students experiment with the explosive qualities of various mixtures of gas and air. Students demonstrate lift and force pumps.

Preparing for Commercial Vocations

In office practice classes students learn to use the mimeograph, rexograph, ditto, and mimeoscope machines. For practice, general office work, assembly song sheets, study outlines, and tests are prepared for the entire school.

Not only do students learn the fundamentals of typing but also good posture, speed, and accuracy in the first-year classes.

As future stenographers, seniors prepare for their careers through shorthand transcription.

Discussing Everyday Problems

In American history classes students learn about our American heritage and an effort is made to awaken an interest and appreciation for our American way of life.

A student volunteers in American history.

Learning to use reference books and to locate information in a library is taught as part of our high school English course.

Library reference assignments are being prepared.

By means of discussions and procedures, Problems of Democracy classes endeavor to practice democratic government. With the aid of student reports, films, and outside speakers, students acquire an understanding of democracy.

The class chairman leads a discussion in Problems of Democracy.

Studying Various Languages

In the German classes grammar, vocabulary, and translation are stressed rather than learning to speak German. Learning to sing German Christmas carols during the holiday season adds enjoyment to the classes.

German students learn sentence structure.

English students learn to diagram.

Latin students acquire a background of Latin through translating and studying the vocabulary and ancient Roman customs.

Latin students translate a story.

Creating with Our Hands

Some of the projects undertaken in the art classes are designing and painting posters for the senior play, tooling metal plaques, illustrating stories, sketching portraits, and making fabric and fashion designs. Students use clay for making lamp bases, Pennsylvania Dutch plates, and models of animals.

For students interested in industrial arts, a course in machine woodworking is offered. Safety is an important factor stressed in the shop. The projects include a cedar chest, a chest of drawers, a serving table and end tables, and bookshelves.

Students prepare their ceramic pieces for the first firing in the kiln.

The boys are studying the operation of a lathe.

Practicing Homemaking

In addition to choosing textiles and making clothing, the girls in home economics classes learn personality adjustment, good manners, and grooming. Home management, child care, and family relationships are also studied.

In the food classes, book work is combined with practical experience. Nutrition, meal - planning, consumer knowledge, and table-setting and service are taught.

Checking Physical Welfare

Under Nazareth High School's three-fold health program, each student is given a complete physical and dental examination every other year. Before participating in sports, athletes are given a physical check-up.

Doctor Fraunfelder gives a thorough physical check-up before these boys participate in athletics.

Learning Fundamentals

Mr. Cump demonstrates the slide rule to trig students.

In order to build strong bodies, good health habits, as well as knowledge of the human anatomy, are taught in health classes.

Students return from a driving lesson.

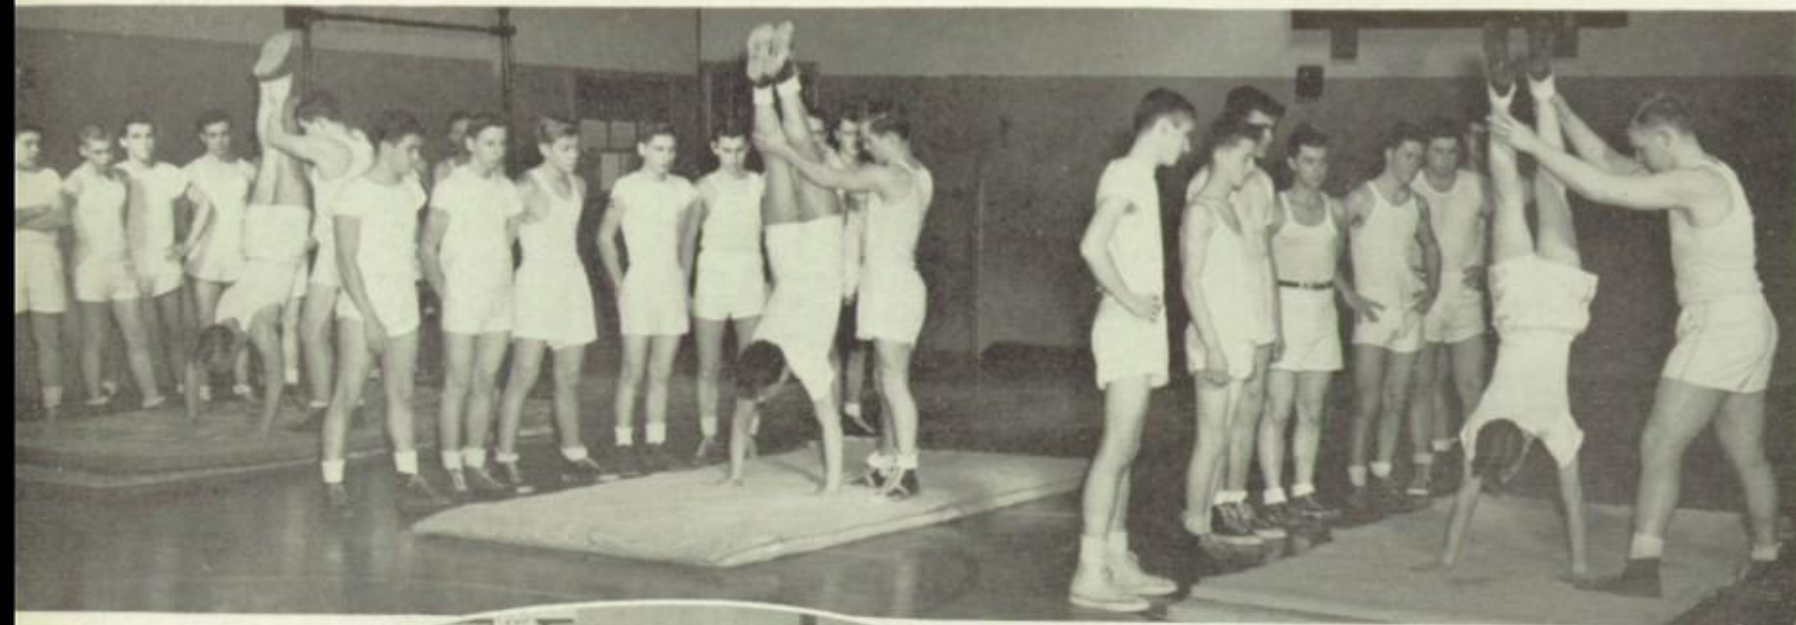

Advanced mathematics, including plane geometry and advanced algebra, is an elective course chosen mainly by students preparing for college.

Warren Eberts explains the digestive tract in health class.

As part of the Driver Education Course, students study traffic laws and the responsibilities of drivers. Then they practice driving with an instructor in a dual-control car. Learning good driving habits and earning a driver's license are the goals of this course.

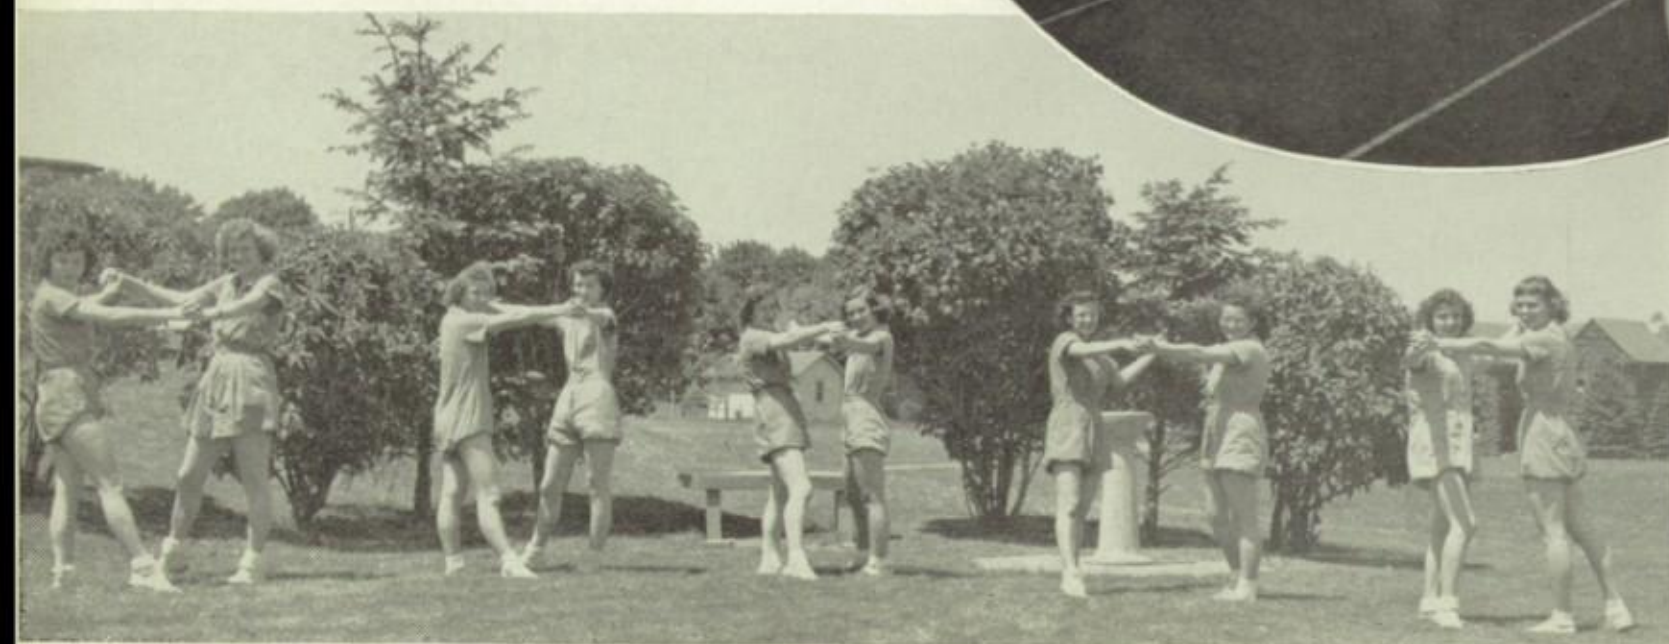

Developing Healthy Bodies

In gym class students learn not only sportsmanship and coordination, but also develop skill in games. Besides keeping the body fit, these sports provide recreation for leisure time.

The Auction

In the early days the Pennsylvania Dutchman's week was frequently enlivened by an auction. This was, and still is, their means of disposing of household goods, farm machinery, and livestock. The auctioneer who guided this affair had the responsibility of adding zest to the bidding and rivalry amongst the bidders. A time of continual activity, an auction lasted for a few hours or could become an all-day affair.

Resembling these old-time bustling auctions, our school activity periods are filled with busy moments. This activity, however, is more than mere busyness. The various clubs and other organizations help students develop a cooperative spirit as well as leisure time activities.

A Working Democracy

The Student Council, composed of a boy and girl representative from each homeroom in the senior high school and three faculty advisers, is responsible for student government in our high school. The Council assumes responsibility for the social program through the various parties planned and held throughout the year. These take in a wide variety ranging from the square dance to the holiday socials. Besides this, the Council sells refreshments at the home football and basketball games.

Top to bottom—

Dancing is Fun

For the enjoyment of the student body, dances are held on special occasions throughout the year. These dances are sponsored by the Student Council, which cleverly decorates the gym to fit the special event.

There's No Tomorrow

The long awaited moment had finally arrived. Couples strolled into the gym to the melodic strains of Jimmy Meigham's Orchestra and found a brightly colored Mexican village. Little Mexican figures in blankets and sombreros added reality to the scene. A huge array of gaily colored balloons and cactus plants added life to the atmosphere.

Around 9:30 when everyone was hungry, sandwiches, punch, and cake were served by pages in gay colored peasant costumes.

The dancing continued till the final strains of "Goodnight Sweetheart" were heard. Everyone enjoyed our Mexican Fiesta.

NOVEMBER 3 AND 4

"Meet Me In St. Louis" produced laughter and suspense as the four Smith girls plotted against their father, who had decided to move to New York just before the opening of the great World's Fair in St. Louis. Due to the girls' mischief the plot backfires, and everyone's plans are ruined. After Mr. Duffy's scheming is discovered, the play progresses to a happy ending with the boom! boom! of the fireworks announcing at last the opening of the fair.

After the COMET Staff was selected in September, its first task was to choose a theme. Following several periods of discussion, a Pennsylvania Dutch theme was chosen with the idea of using those customs still in vogue in Nazareth and vicinity to serve as a background for picturing our year's activities at Nazareth High School.

BUSINESS STAFF

Standing: Jones, Reimer, Fuls, Mrs. Kolessar, Kindt. Seated: Alich, Koehler, Frutchey, Hofer, Mathews, Pleiss, Thomas.

While the layout artists planned the layout page by page in preparation for the photographer's first visit, the business staff solicited advertisements. Next they solicited for patrons and then took orders for the book. The entire revenue for publishing the COMET comes from our advertisers, patrons, and the sale of books.

ARTISTS

Schweitzer, Wagner, Werkheiser, Hahn, Nagle (absent). Miss Clute, Art Adviser (absent)

During this time the editorial staff wrote the senior biographies and decided on the material to be included in each section.

As quickly as the editorial staff wrote copy, it was prepared for the printer by the typists.

Perhaps the most industrious of all were the artists sketching the designs for the divider pages, borders, and spots which add to the interest of our yearbook.

The artists worked under the direction of Miss Jean Clute; the business staff under the direction of Mrs. Belva Kolessar; and the editorial, layout, and typing groups under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Sloat.

Published for a period of twenty years, the Blue and White Standard, the Nazareth High School monthly publication, presents a coverage of current school news.

Formerly a three-column newspaper, the Standard has now become a four-column, four-page monthly. Occasionally the Blue and White carries additional pages for the creative work of students or for outstanding feature articles. Although all areas of school activities are covered, stress is placed upon news.

By means of its staff, comprising editorial, typing, business, and circulation divisions, senior high students take charge of the first three pages, while junior high, with its own editorial staff, is responsible for the fourth page.

Blue and White Standard

The junior high school staff, chosen largely from ninth-grade students, concentrates upon general news coverage. This training frequently has a carryover value and students continue on the staff in senior high school.

The practical training received by staff members has proved useful to many graduates. As a result of their journalistic interests in high school, some have continued in the field of journalism after graduation.

As a member of both the Pennsylvania and Columbia Press Associations, the Blue and White Standard has won a third place rating this year.

Enjoying Activity Period

This year's successor to the Forum Club was the open meeting in which any topic of interest to students was discussed. Some of the subjects considered were the characteristics of good teaching from the student view point, teen-age dating, and the value of extra-curricular activities.

Knitting was added to the club roster this year. In addition to the fundamentals of knitting the girls learned various stitches in preparation for their projects. Dish cloths, ribbed beanies, mittens, sweaters, and argyle socks were knitted.

To help in preparing stage settings and to take care of the lighting are the main purposes of the Stagecraft Club. Stage settings prepared this year were for the senior play, the operetta, the band concerts, and the dramatic club productions.

The Dramatic Club's program for this year included acting and studying pantomimes and impersonations. The one act plays—The Christmas Pearl, Just What They Wanted, Sauce for the Goslings, and Wilbur Faces Life—were assembly or exchange programs.

Developing New Skills

During the first semester a gun club, under the guidance of Mr. Graver, was started. The interested boys were taught ballistics and the history and evolution of firearms from the matchlock to the present-day gun. Methods of handling modern sporting firearms for hunting and target work were discussed. Besides these activities, the members saw and handled various types of American military rifles from the flintlock of the Revolutionary Period, to the Springfield of today.

By developing, printing, and enlarging pictures, the Photography Club attempts to develop the scientific and artistic abilities of interested students. Subject material consists of everyday life in and out of school, sports, plays, social events, and other subjects.

Arousing Commercial Interest

Mr. Felver prepares to show a movie in Commercial Club.

President Kratzer conducts a club meeting.

To give commercial students a broader knowledge of business activities, this club, directed by Mr. Felver, Mrs. Metz, and Mrs. Bleiler, took trips to the Telephone Exchange, the Nazareth Banks, and the Waist Company. Speakers and various films were also presented in club periods.

To provide non-commercial students with the opportunity of learning to type, this club was formed. Members learn the fundamentals of typing and become familiar with the parts of a typewriter.

Club members type personal letters.

Mrs. Graver explains the parts of a machine to the Typing Club.

Using Our Library

Our library, one of the most frequently used rooms in the high school, is visited daily by almost every student. Approximately 6000 books, including fiction, non-fiction, poetry, drama, science, and government, fill the shelves. Besides this, there are 74 magazines available for faculty and student use. Between 80 and 100 books are taken out daily by the students and approximately 10 to 15 magazines. With the assistance of student librarians, Miss Berger supervises the use of the library.

Students use Readers' Guides to locate reference material.

English students select books for reports.

Students enjoy reading newspapers and magazines in leisure time.

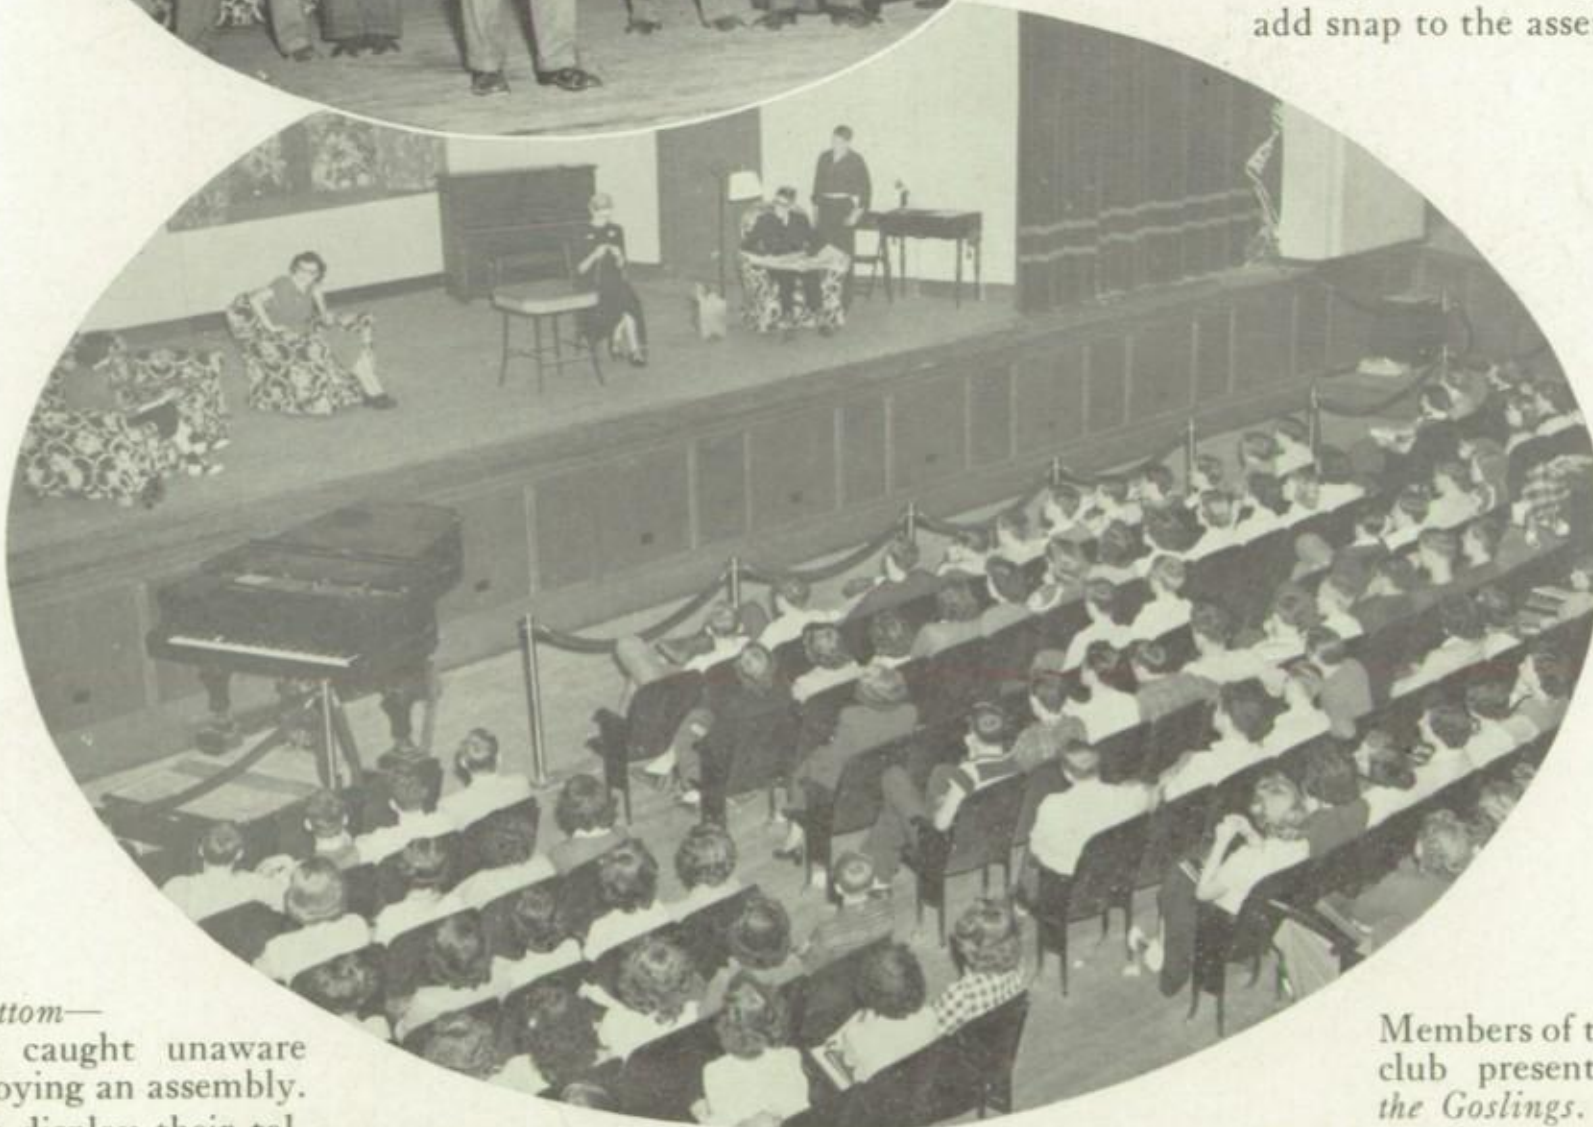

Student librarians mend books and replace pockets.

Enjoying Student Talent

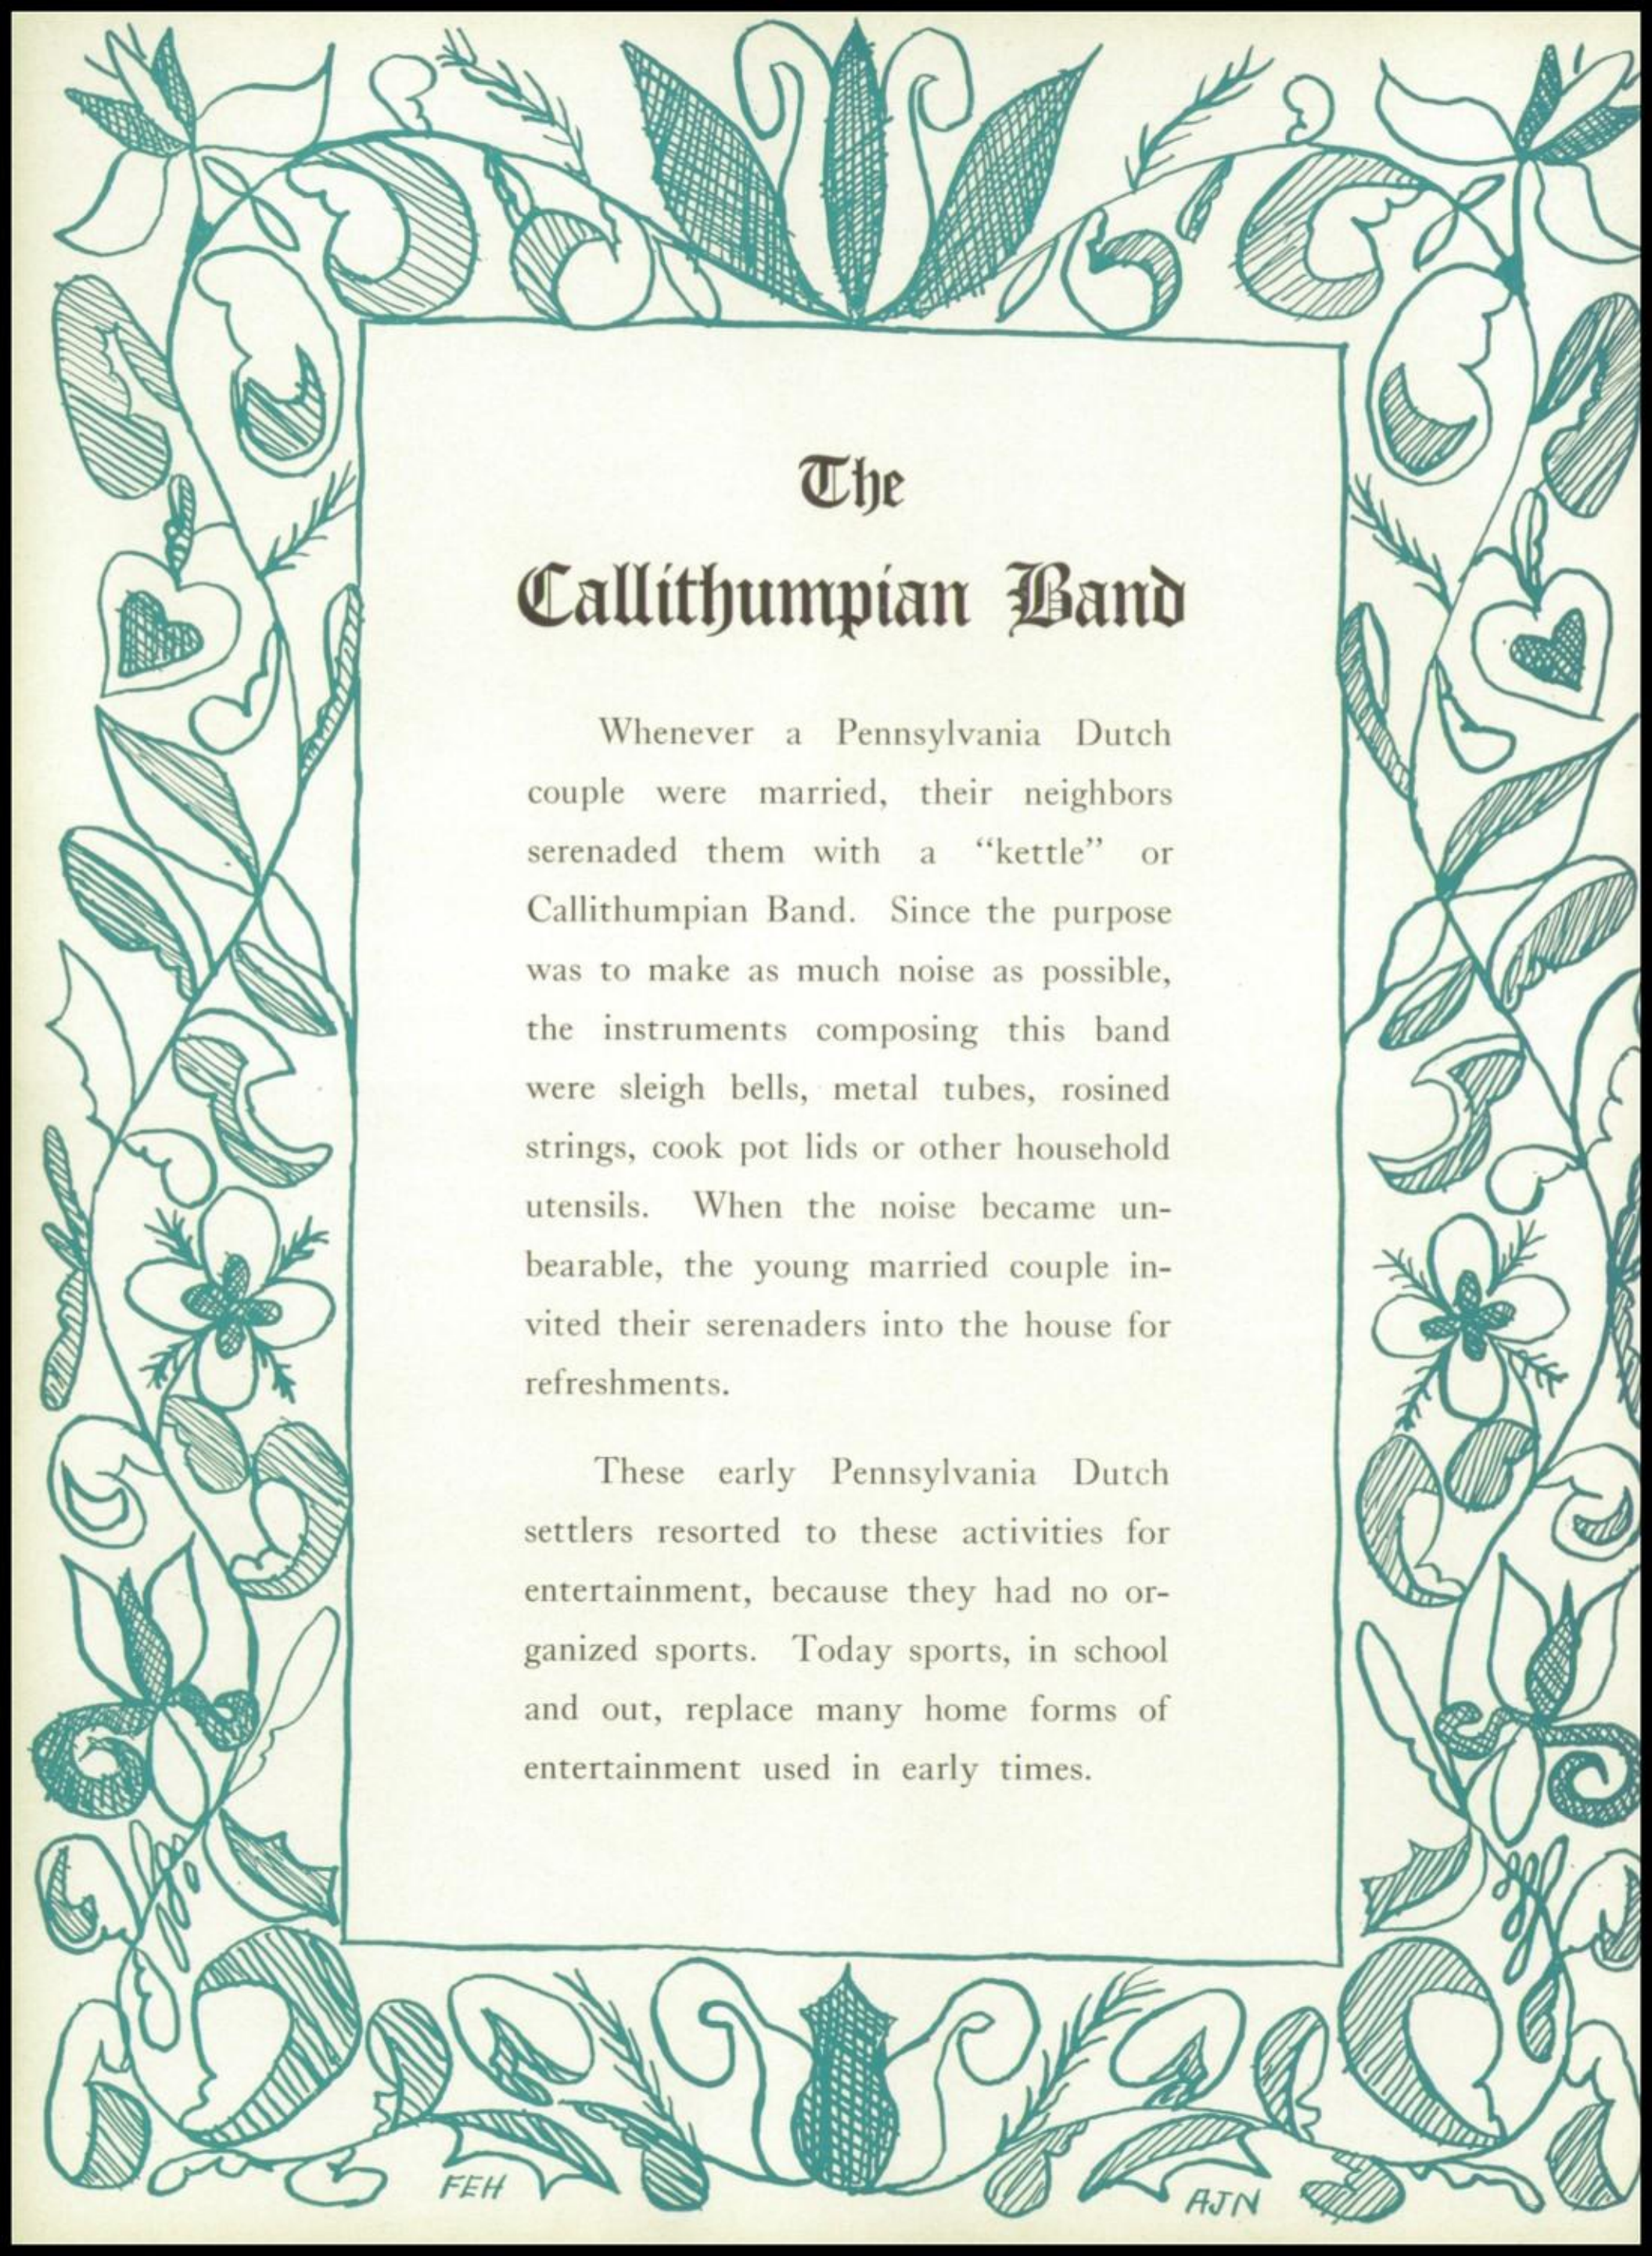

As part of the general activity program, talent within and without the school makes up the weekly assemblies. The dramatic and glee clubs give the students an opportunity to display their abilities. Outside speakers, exchange programs, motion pictures, and professional performers add snap to the assemblies.

The Callithumpian Band

Whenever a Pennsylvania Dutch couple were married, their neighbors serenaded them with a "kettle" or Callithumpian Band. Since the purpose was to make as much noise as possible, the instruments composing this band were sleigh bells, metal tubes, rosined strings, cook pot lids or other household utensils. When the noise became unbearable, the young married couple invited their serenaders into the house for refreshments.

These early Pennsylvania Dutch settlers resorted to these activities for entertainment, because they had no organized sports. Today sports, in school and out, replace many home forms of entertainment used in early times.

FOOTBALL

Before a cheering crowd, the Nazareth High Blue Eagles plunged into their first victory with a 25-0 defeat over Shillington.

With the boys all steamed up for the first league game, another exciting victory was chalked up. Nazareth's blocking Coplay's kick-off set up the first touchdown and gave Nazareth a 6-0 lead. With this as a starter, the opposition grew stronger, and, with the aid of the coaches and the cheering crowd, a 27-13 victory was Nazareth's.

The Pen Argyl game proved less difficult. Ahern's only pass of the season was received by Eickhoff for the first touchdown. Amid drizzling rain, the team came through with a 19-6 victory.

A screen pass by Marakovits proved to be the season's finest in the challenge against Bangor. The first half was a continuous struggle with Yost scoring the only touchdown as the result of a perfectly executed screen pass. Heavy rain started out the second half as Bangor came through with a touchdown tying the score. Although the Eagles put up a heavy battle, the final result was a 12-6 defeat.

Playing on home ground, the Blue Eagles defeated a less spirited East Stroudsburg eleven by a score of 26-0.

Thanksgiving Day dawned cool and crisp as a cheering crowd packed into Cottingham Stadium. From the moment of the kick-off a thrilling battle was witnessed. Endless struggles of both teams to reach the end zone proved in vain as the first half ended in a 0-0 tie. A colorful display by the Wilson and Nazareth bands added highlights to the game. Encouragement from the coaches pepped the boys up for the final half of the important game. With the crowd yelling wildly for action, Eickhoff received a jump pass from Gaston and carried the pigskin for the first touchdown. The ever-needed extra point was produced by Ahern's perfect place kick. Action really grew as Wilson plunged across the goal line two minutes later. Obtaining the extra point, Wilson tied the game 7-7. In spite of frantic efforts on both sides, the game ended in a tie.

FOOTBALL

The Eagles really found tough competition among the non-league teams. Slatington, our second opponent of the year, proved to be a difficult match and Nazareth was defeated 25-21.

Playing at Breaden field, the Eagles witnessed their first night game and also a narrow defeat as Whitehall reigned victorious 13-12.

A fast powerful Emmaus eleven also outshone the Eagles in a final score of 19-7.

Although this year's backfield defense was not quite up to par, Coach Leh feels that next year's team will show marked improvement through the experience they have gained.

To top off the season, Vincent Ferraro was elected honorary captain of the squad.

BASKETBALL

December found the Nazareth Blue Eagles plunging into practice for the coming 1949-50 basketball season. The opening game against Whitehall proved quite a blow with the final score ending 62-33. Continual practice and some new tactics aided the boys, but the competition still was heavy.

Although the Eagles' attempts to win during the first half of the season seemed futile, the boys really came through with some action in the second half. Nazareth's old rival, Wilson, put up a forceful battle, but the Eagles reigned victorious 43-42. This exciting game turned out to be one of the highlights of the season as Wilson later went on to take the League Championship.

Another outstanding feature on the records was the fact that no technical fouls were called on the Eagles.

Reaching Our Goal

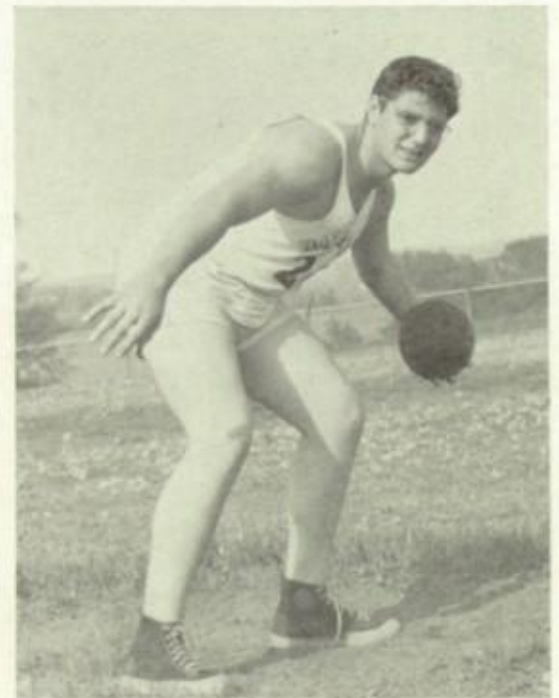

As part of their training preparation for the season, the team jogged around the track or did calisthenics in the gym to get in condition for the meets.

In 1949 the track team had a very successful season, winning three out of four dual meets and placing second in the Lehigh-Northampton League

On April 30, the team traveled to the Quaker City to participate in the annual Penn Relays. Richard Ahern, Donald Houck, Ronald Gross, and Donald Happel ran the mile relay for Nazareth High. The team placed sixth in the ten-team competition.

According to the record, Donald Happel and Richard Ahern were the outstanding men of the year. Ahern scored a total of 74 points, while Happel earned 65.

With the coming of spring, the Eagles again plunged into another exciting baseball season. For the second consecutive year, Coach Leh's boys won the Lehigh-Northampton League Championship with a total of four games lost and ten won. With Coplay and Nazareth tie for the League Title, the Eagles came through with a 20-1 victory. Emmaus, playing on home territory, proved a greater challenge and Nazareth lost the District 11 play-off by a 17-9 score. In the course of the fourteen games, Walter Kostenbader pitched a no hit no error game against Bangor, scoring a 3-0 victory.

Captain John Santo aided the team with the high batting average of .475.

Participating in

Ground sticks, ground sticks, smack! Every Tuesday and Thursday the girls practice new tactics for the intra-mural hockey season. Although both juniors and seniors worked diligently, the senior team, The Stix, won the championship.

Girls have hockey scrimmage.

Twice weekly at the end of the school day, the girls rush to the locker rooms to dress for sports. Hockey season starts things rolling. Then comes basketball. Volleyball, too, provides enjoyment for many of the girls. With the arrival of spring, comes the baseball season which ends the round of sports. Skills, sportsmanship, and recreation are provided by these seasonal activities.

Hit it! Hit it! Exciting shouts can be heard as the girls plunge into another vigorous game of volleyball.

After school volleyball provides recreation.

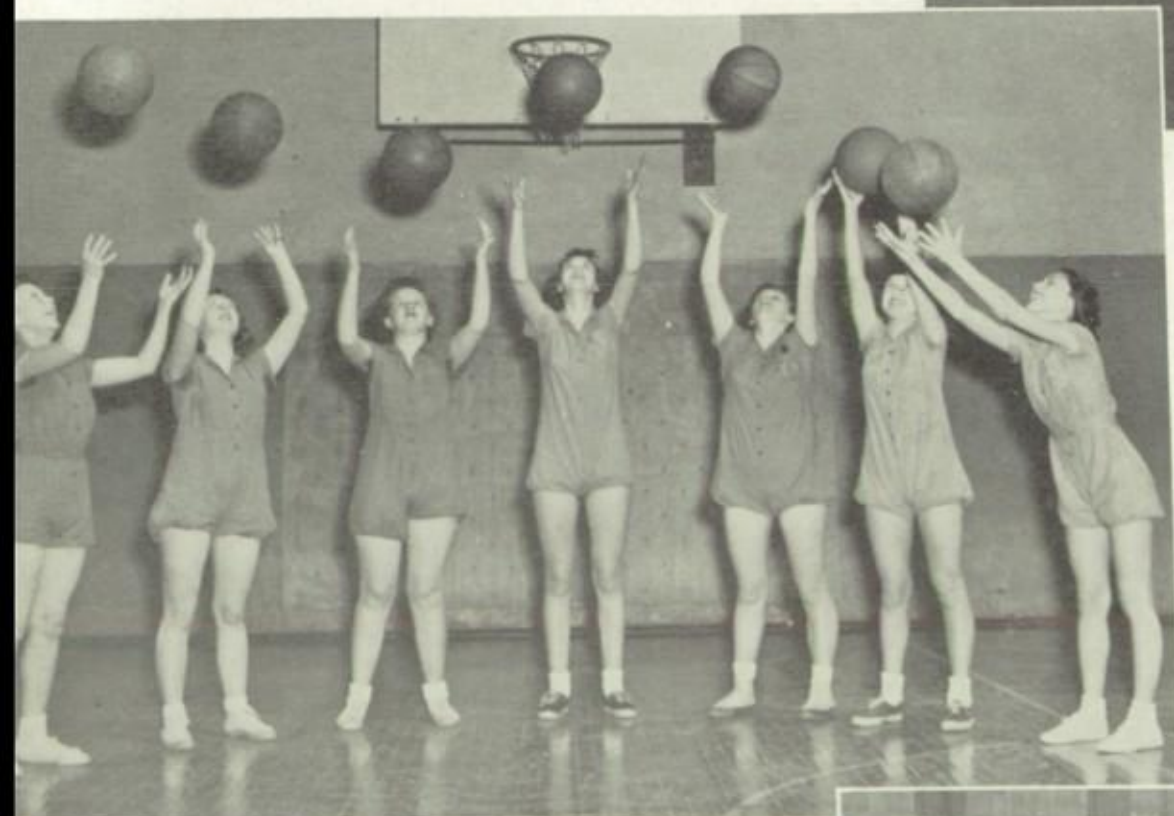

After-School Activities

Shoot! Shoot! That's the familiar cry of the girls starting another peppy basketball season. Both captains and co-captains strive to have their teams win.

During the basketball season students learn the fundamentals of refereeing. With the assistance of the instructor, the girls referee championship games.

After playing vigorously during the entire basketball season, the senior girls, the Dingle Dangles, won the school championship.

You're out! With the coming of spring, the girls again flock outdoors for the baseball season. As in all other sports, the girls strive to have a championship team.

Top to bottom—

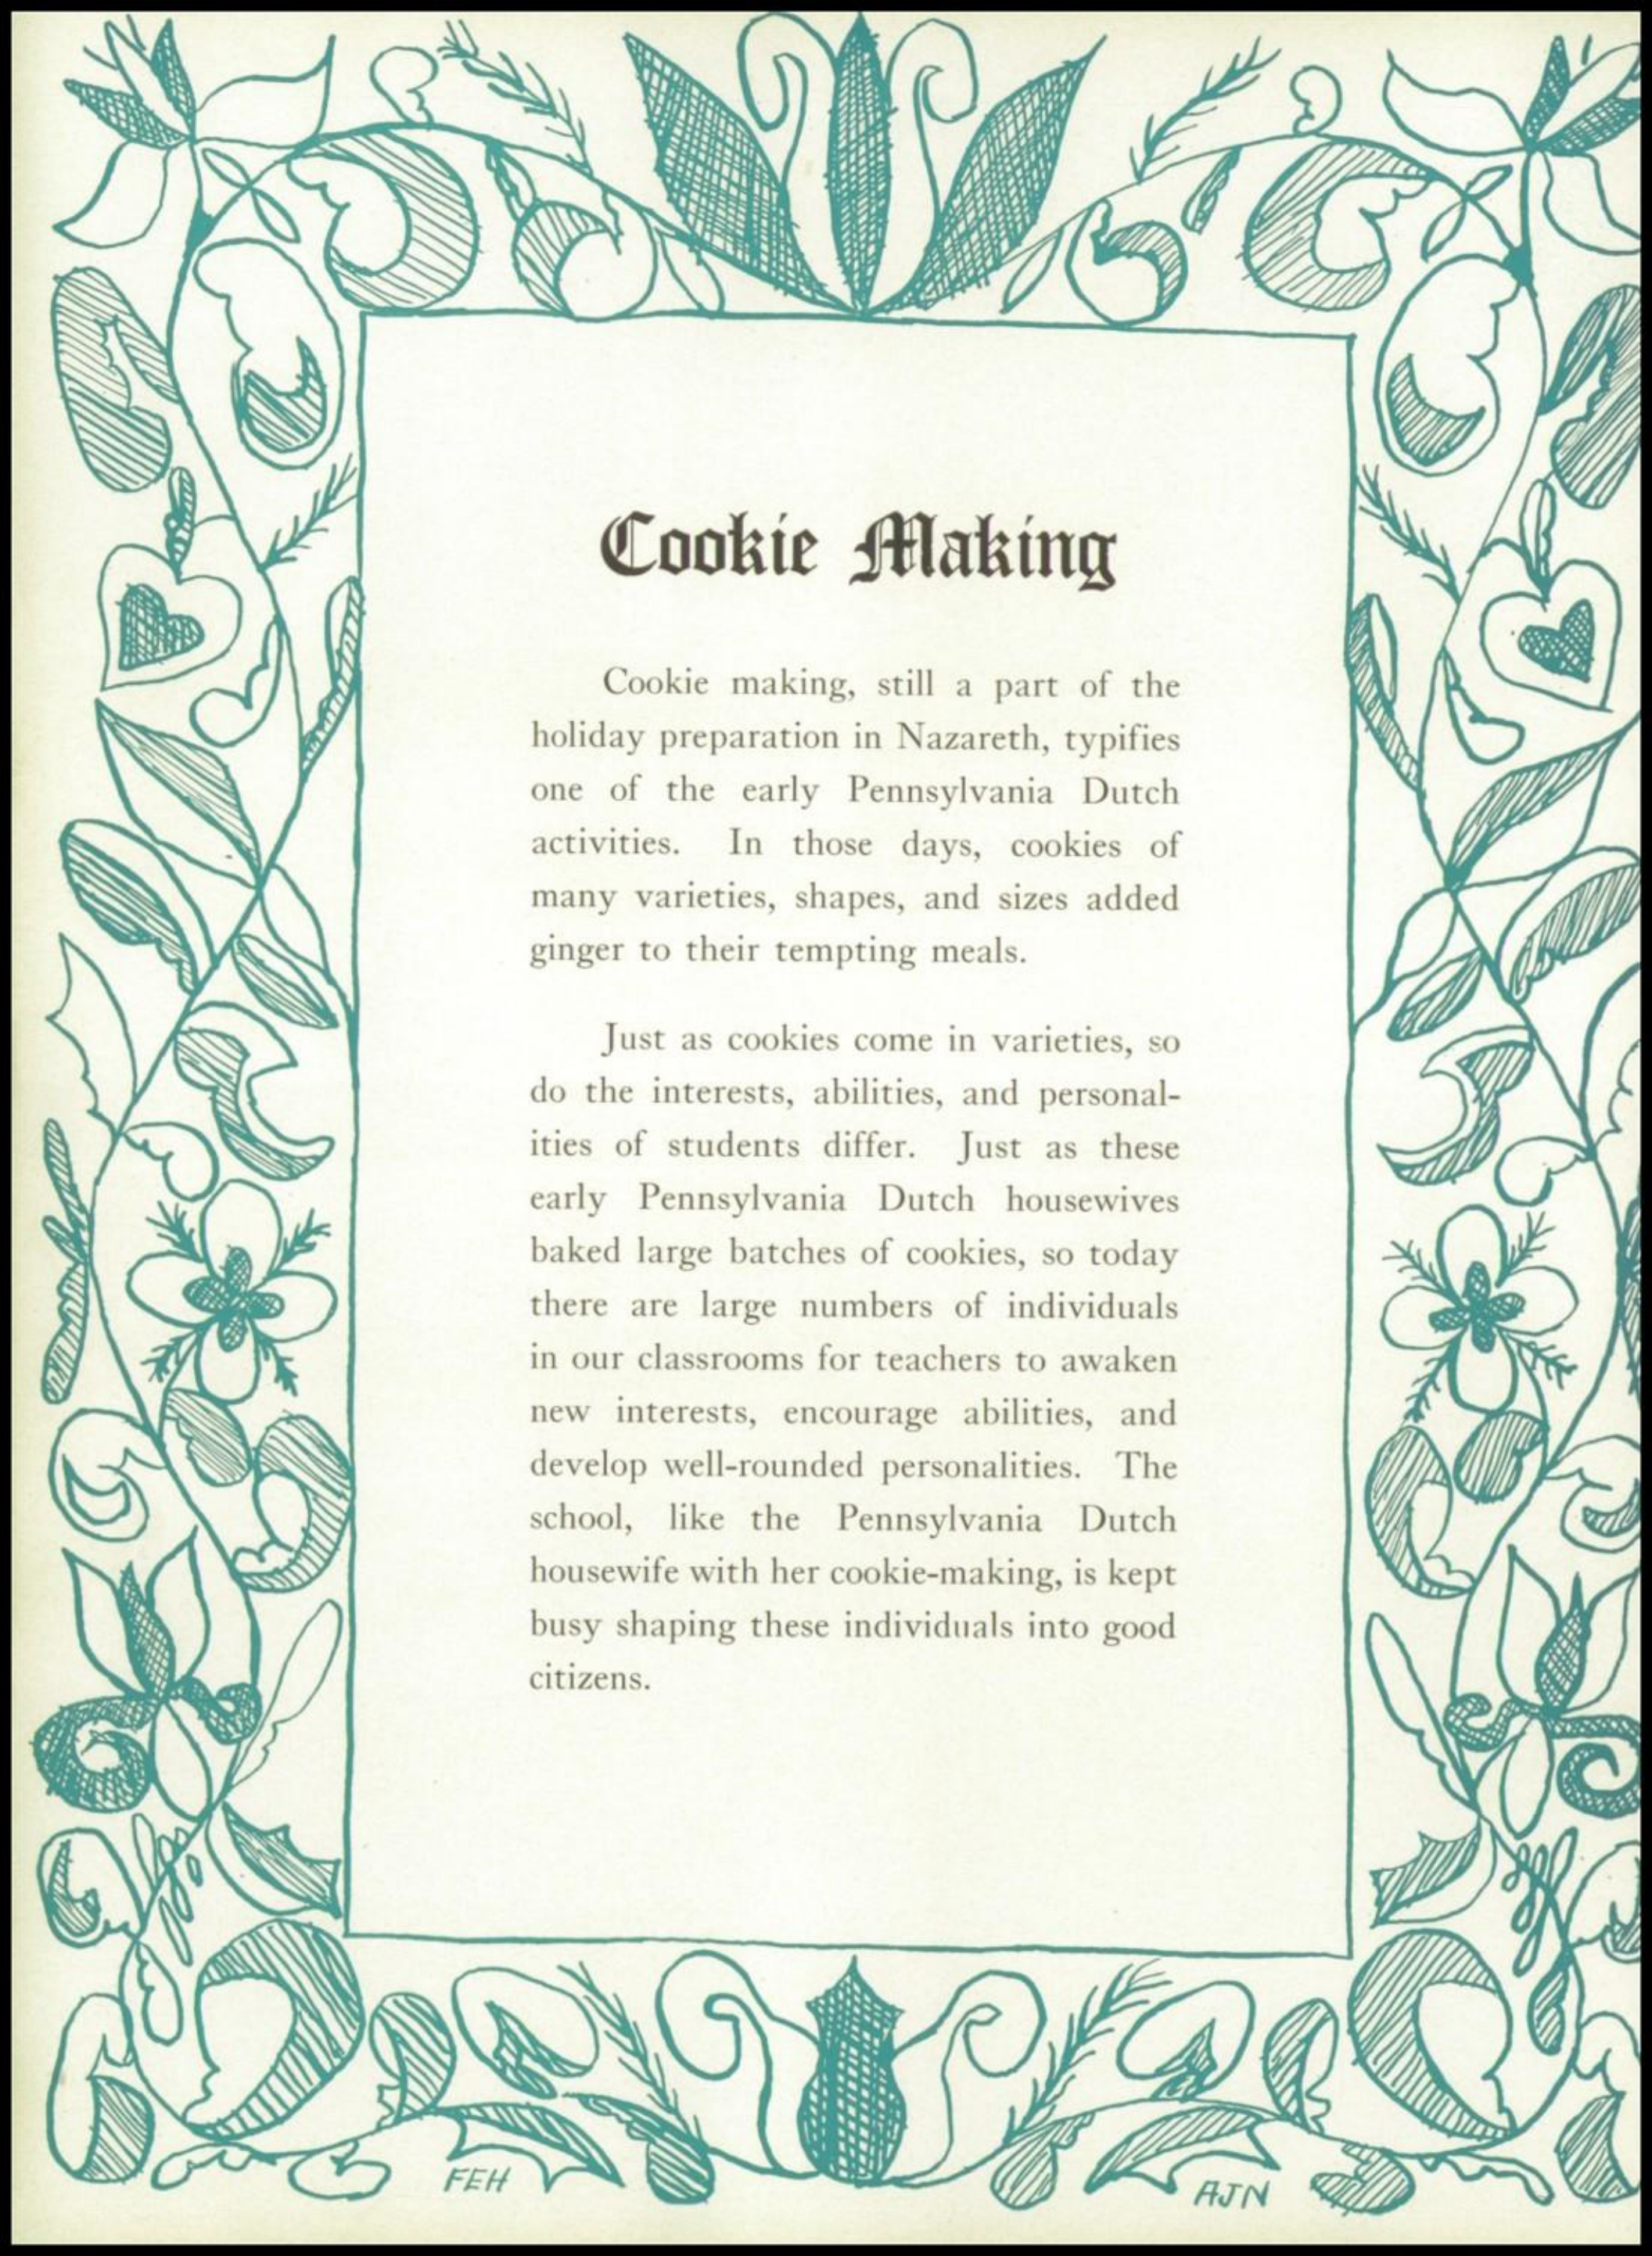

Girls dribble toward a goal.

Student referees watch a practice game.

The Dingle Dangles win the school championship.

Girls warm up in baseball.

Cookie Making

Cookie making, still a part of the holiday preparation in Nazareth, typifies one of the early Pennsylvania Dutch activities. In those days, cookies of many varieties, shapes, and sizes added ginger to their tempting meals.

Just as cookies come in varieties, so do the interests, abilities, and personalities of students differ. Just as these early Pennsylvania Dutch housewives baked large batches of cookies, so today there are large numbers of individuals in our classrooms for teachers to awaken new interests, encourage abilities, and develop well-rounded personalities. The school, like the Pennsylvania Dutch housewife with her cookie-making, is kept busy shaping these individuals into good citizens.

F. SCHWEITZER

And Always Flowers

Each spring brightly colored flower gardens add gaiety and life to the back yards of many homes in Nazareth. Caring for these gardens occupies many pleasant hours and gives the feeling of pride to the owners as well as enjoyment to neighbors and passers-by.

Breaking the soil in early spring, planting seeds and bulbs, and tending the flowers in their growing stage kept these people busy. So, the business staff of the COMET was kept busy earning money to publish this yearbook.

Only through the support and the aid of our many patrons and advertisers was this book made possible. To them we express our sincere appreciation and thanks for their generous contributions and patronage.
